The nuclear testing options paper was again reviewed by the Interagency group and returned to the working group. A number of suggestions were made, principally for the addition of a new option, for improvements to existing options, and for a simple overview of the non-technical issues.

Views were exchanged on the status of follow-on studies mandated by NSDD-63 on the effects on the precision of direct yield measurements from test geometries, geologic factors, and possible spoofing efforts.

The IG also considered the nuclear test ban mandate problem at the Conference on Disarmament and decided not to recommend to the NSC any change in the existing mandate's formulation, pending new developments.
